APPLES ARE HIGH

And Other Fruits Being Scarce, Big Prices Are Indicated for Dried Fruits This Fall.

"The farmers who are lucky enough to have an orchard can pick up some nice extra money by taking a little trouble," said R. E. Funsten, president of the Funsten Dried Fruit & Nut Co., of St. Louis, largest concern of its kind in the world, in a recent interview.

"If they will sun dry or evaporate every apple, not used some more profitable way, they can command prices ranging to as high as 100 per cent more than ever before received at this time of year. This is not due to any shortage of the apple crop, but to the shortage and scarcity of peaches, prunes, apricots, and raisins, which has resulted in a tremendously increased demand for dried and evaporated apples.

"Just to show what's happening, evaporated apples sold July last year at five to six cents and this year are eagerly sought at twelve to fifteen cents a pound. So you see there's a chance for the farmer with only a few apple trees to make some money as well as the professional orchardist, by taking a little trouble.

"Of course, it pays to take apples to an evaporator if one is near, but where not, apples cut in quarters and dried in the sun do well."

Mr. Funsten's firm is not a commission house, but one of the largest packers of dried fruit in the country, and has done much to establish Western dried apples in not only every European market as well, and he is therefore in a position to know the market conditions of the world at large, and what he says may be considered a good tip by farmers and orchardists who have apples this year.

Automatic self control

When the piano player first begins to practice, he spends an enormous amount of energy and mental force in thinking out every movement separately and using his will power in making it; but a Paderewski, through many years experience, has made his movements so automatic that he can play very complicated compositions and still be thinking of something else. His nerve and brain have been so trained that they make lightning movements with scarcely a thought or effort of the will.

Character building is like piano playing.

The art of all arts is so to train the mind that just as many as possible of the mental processes which are absolutely necessary to our well being shall be automatic.

It does not take very long to establish a right habit and if it is encouraged, it will serve us a lifetime.

There are a few life habits which, if formed early and established thoroughly, will change the whole career.

If the child is taught to do every thing to a finish, to stamp superiority upon everything before it goes out of his hands, and to be truthful and industrious, his whole life afterward will be powerfully influenced without much thought or effort of will power.

The largest electric valve ever built has just been constructed at Indian Orchard, Mass. It and two others were designed to control the water that drives the 12,000 horse power by hydraulic turbines at the Niagara Falls station of the Ontario Power Company. The valves are nine feet in diameter and weight sixty-five tons each. Three minutes are required to lift or lower the gates.

IMPOVEMENTS FOR ROVAL

New Structure Being Built of Fire Proof Material.

Work is progressing rapidly on the new building which will house the sheep, swine, poultry and horse and mule sections of the American Royal Live Stock show, at the Kansas City stock yards October 9 to 14.

The new structure will be of brick on concrete foundations, the pens of metal fencing supplied with metal hay racks and water troughs. The roof will also be of fire proof material. The dimensions over all will be 286 feet wide by 472 feet long and will afford space for, approximately, 25,000 head of sheep or swine. One end will be separated from the main structure by a fire wall, and in this part will be the stall room where all horses and mules exhibited in the ring will be cared for. The lunch room, a feature of the show for several years past, will also be found in the new building.

The new building will be one of the largest show places under one roof in the country.

Cuts and bruises may be healed in about one third the time required by the usual treatment by applying Chamberlain's Liniment. It is an antiseptic and causes such injuries to heal without maturation. This liniment also relieves soreness of the muscles and rheumatic pain. For sale by all druggists.

They got the cattle.

A story of the most genuine interest, and possessing a moral of true worth, comes from over the wires from Beuna Vista, Colo.

A State reformatory farm is located near that town; and one of the most valuable assets of the farm is a herd of cattle, numbering 100 head.

The other day the cattle became frightened and broke through the fence which confined them. They became intoxicated with the sense of liberty and made a dash for the furthest horizon. Before they were missed they had disappeared in a cloud of dust—and when the cloud of dust was settled, the horizon line was unbroken again. The cattle were gone.

Warden Felix O'Neill discovered his loss after a time, but there was no one to send after the stampeded cattle. That is there was no one who could be said to be wholly eligible for the task.

But the Warden was a man of more than medium caliber; and after a moment's reflection he sent for two convicts serving long sentences.

"I want you men to bring all the cattle back," he said. "You will have a good chance to escape if you desire but if you do you will be deceiving me and you will probably cause the state a heavy financial loss. Cattle are valuable."

Not a very impressive lecture to give to men who had lost all they had, apparently, and who, we have no doubt, had been cruelly deceived a thousand times themselves.

Nevertheless, the men started out to find the cattle. "Warden you know those cattle may have strayed a long distance," one of them said before galloping away. "Don't be worried if you do not hear from us."

The men were not accustomed to riding, and they had to traverse rough country. But after ten days they returned, bringing all the State's cattle with them. Let us not moralize on this brief Western incident. The facts supply moral enough.
